

I expect my news station to offer all sides of an issue. In an election this close, the media has an obligation to stay neutral and report the news in a balanced way. Sinclair is on record as to which way they lean through their editorial comments and through this most recent decision to air an anti-Kerry documentary just before the election. Rather than inform their viewers, they have taken on a mission to produce biased information with the obvious intent to alter the result of the election with questionable propaganda.

We need more local news generated from and focusing on the people who live HERE. This is necessary for a true democracy.

Sinclair has become the poster child of the large corporation trying to change and alter news to fit their own opinions with no respect for their viewers. Their actions illustrate why we need to strengthen media ownership rules so that smaller companies are not squeezed out. The license renewal process should require more scrutiny for quality and more local participation in the decision.
Thank you.
